Woodstock Hearing... Opposition to Proposed Motel

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK

Certain issues in Woodstock incite conditioned-reflex action.

Historically, when any builder contemplates major construction projects, many residents don't even pause to take a deep breath before voicing opposition.

Thursday night it was Paul Mundt, owner of Woodstock Estates, who drew the wrath of some 200 people at a public hearing in Town Hall. Mundt appeared before the Zoning Board of Appeals to request variances to permit construction of a 48-unit motel with 44 parking spaces, and construction of 124 townhouse apartments on the Estates premises on Tinker Street. The apartments as projected comprised 42 one and two-bedroom units and 82 efficiency and one-bedroom units with 213 parking spaces. A restaurant to seat 200 to 300 persons also figured in preliminary site plans, but was withdrawn.

Designer-architect Herman Sands had barely begun to explain the project (a $3-million undertaking) as "a facility needed and required in Woodstock," when heckling surfaced in the audience. Appeals Board chairman Robert Cross, noting that "Woodstock is still part of middle U.S.A." and that "we are going to run this meeting as it should be done," brought the hearing back to order.

What Sands envisioned on the 20 to 25 acres of Estates land (now located partially within the commercial zone and partially within the residential zone) was a motel and housing complex that would provide "a large tax base for the town."

While rentals had not yet been established, he said, he offered the following approximate scale: efficiencies, $150-$175; one-bedroom, $200-$225; luxury one-and-two bedrooms, $300.

Audience reaction varied—but it was almost totally in opposition. Hooted one resident: "It'll be a fine place to put welfare families." Said Walter Schulman president of the Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association, "You're proposing to put 10 per cent of our present population into 20 acres of space."

Ten contiguous property owners expressed strong opposition to the project. In a letter to the board, Attorney Martin Comeau protested the granting of the variances on the grounds that the variances "are only granted to relieve a hardship." He suggested that what the Estates wanted was a change in the laws and that this could not be done by variance.

Artist John Pike, whose Woodstock Watercolor Schools adjoin the Estates, protested that "the Westchester, mother hens concept does not yet belong" in Woodstock. Local real estate agent Peggy Cole said her experience shows people come to Woodstock to "live in the country, not in Westchester apartments." She suggested Mundt be "less greedy and make not quite so much money" by building 16 units instead of an unneeded 200 on 20 small acres.

Perhaps more to the point was the opinion expressed by the Ulster County Planning Board in a letter to the Board of Appeals. "The request should be denied without prejudice," it said, since "this is a substantial change from the intent of the Woodstock Master Plan," with "the change in density going far beyond the intent of the State law." The County Board maintained that developers should apply to the Town Board for a change in zoning.

Also entered for the record was a letter from James Kerr, attorney for the Woodstock Town Board. It was his opinion that the application was an application "for amendment," and should be treated as such since the Appeals Board "has no jurisdiction" in matters of such broad scope. He also said the project "seeks spot zoning" and that approval would constitute "a grant of special privilege" by permitting greater density at the Estates than elsewhere in Woodstock.

This brought an objection from Donald Tracey, Mundt's attorney, who accused the Town Board of "attempting to interfere" with the decision of the Appeals Board — an action he called "grossly improper."

Spokesmen for the Estates continued to stress that the property "is not now a viable economic entity" and that it is "not going to stay that way." Said Attorney Gerald Wapner, also representing Mundt, "The Estates cannot and will not remain as they have all these years." He asked for a "dialogue" between the Estates and the town in an effort to arrive at a solution that "would fit the needs of both."

The impression was left, whether the variances were granted or not, the Estates would make "business use" of the property. Even so, Estates owner Mundt himself was the final tempering influence, and had the last word. In spite of "Why did you buy it if it's not economically viable?" taunts from the crowd, he promised that "regardless of what happens here, I will never destroy that property."

The statement put him aesthetically on the same side as his opponents. At meeting's end, however, the Appeals Board reserved decision in the matter.

Saigon Troops Counterattack For Laotian Hill

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese paratroopers fought to retake a strategic, 100-foot-high hill seven miles inside Laos today, knocking out North Vietnamese tanks and killing "hundreds" of the Communists who overran the position less than 24 hours earlier.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of South Vietnamese forces in Laos, said the Communists still were holding "some portions" of Hill 31, "but we are counterattacking."

"We have killed hundreds of the enemy on the north and west part of the hill and knocked out eight tanks," the general told UPI correspondent Joseph Galloway at the command post outside the Khe Sanh airstrip in South Vietnam. "The (South Vietnamese) paratroopers continued fighting all night at close quarters. We are still fighting all around the hill."

"The (laak (anti-aircraft fire) around Hill 31 looks like a World War II movie," said WO Ron Pepper of Shreveport, La., pilot of a U.S. Cobra helicopter gunship.

Lam said he did not know who was atop Hill 31 today but that the Communists held parts of it.

U.S. military sources said the battered remnants of a battalion-sized South Vietnamese paratrooper force were in isolated positions in the area. "But no one knows where they are—on the hill or off it."

American helicopters Thursday evacuated all remaining South Vietnamese troops from LZ South, a hilltop position 1,200 meters from the LZ Ranger base which fell to the Communists last weekend. The South Vietnamese were so eager to leave they abandoned mortars and recoilless rifles as they piled into the helicopters and fled.

The helicopters took heavy groundfire as they took off carrying the South Vietnamese and some choppers were forced down at Hill 30, another outpost four miles away and itself under heavy Communist fire. U.S. F4 Phantom jets and Cobra gunships armed with heat-seeking rockets for use against North Vietnamese tanks attacked again and again around Hill 30 and Hill 31.

The heat-seeking rockets were installed after regular antipersonnel rockets fired at the Communist tanks Thursday proved ineffective.

One unidentified U.S. helicopter pilot who flew his Cobra gunship over Hill 31 today said he saw Communist troops disguised as South Vietnamese. They set off a green smoke grenade and "I went down. They threw everything at me, including 37mm anti-aircraft fire," he said.

The U.S. pilot said he assumed the troops were North Vietnamese who put on the uniforms of slain South Vietnamese troops in an effort to lure U.S. helicopters to the outpost. Lam said the attack on Hill 31 Thursday was by a battalion of 18 Soviet-built PT-76 tanks and a North Vietnamese regiment—which at full strength numbers 2,900 men. There were 200 South Vietnamese on the hill, which overlooks Highway 9 crossing from South Vietnam into Laos, but there was no word as to their fate.

U.S. air strikes were called in on Hill 31—so named because it is 31 meters (104 feet) high—within minutes after radio contact was lost and pilots reported tanks inside the barbed wire perimeter with North Vietnamese soldiers pouring through the wire behind them.

A thick overnight fog that shortly afterward settled down prevented further visual observation of what happened there.

The South Vietnamese moved into Laos Feb. 8 with American air support. Their aim is to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail, the main Communist supply route into South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Hill 31 was the second South Vietnamese base to fall. Landing Zone Ranger not far away was evacuated under attack Saturday night.

ALBANY—The Auburn State Prison Investigative Committee returned to the prison Thursday afternoon to a barrage of abuse from "shouting screaming" inmates.

"It was a tense situation," Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, a member of the committee, said. "For awhile we thought there was going to be some difficulties."

In a way they were being self-destructive," Bell said. "As soon as they found we were an investigative team from the state assembly they started shouting and swearing at us. I've never heard such obscenities."

Assemblyman Edward Crawford of Oswego heads the special committee appointed by Assembly Speaker Perry D. Duryea. Members include Bell, and Thomas J. Murphy of Onondaga County, all Republicans and Michael L. McCarthy of Erie and Marth T. Southhall of New York City, both Democrats.

This was the second trip to Auburn for the investigative committee and featured five hours of interviews with prison doctors, in regards to their examinations of inmates concerning drugs, liquor, brutality and homosexuality and sanitary conditions.

Members of the committee interviewed prison personnel injured in the Nov. 4 riot along with the prison chaplains and psychiatrists.

Bell said that the choice of prisoners (to interview) was by random selection. "What we did," he explained, "was to pair off teams of one Democratic assemblyman and one Republican. We would then go into the cell blocks and pick out prisoners at random for interviews." Bell said he took a camera on his second tour of the prison yesterday.

"It was a very tense situation," Bell said, "what with the shouting and swearing going on."

"We were given testimony on the Nov. 4 riots where inmates ripped beds apart and tried to set them on fire; where they destroyed the washing facilities in their cells and flooded the cells. Eight guards were injured in the riots. A lot of them are scared they'll be killed. Conditions are terrible there."

Bell said that testimony so far indicates that relatively few of the inmates were involved in the riots of Nov. 4 but that after the disturbances everyone was put under cell lock. "Many of the inmates did nothing," Bell said, "but were punished along with the bad guys. There is a great deal of resentment over that."

Bell said the committee left the prison Thursday afternoon with stacks of records of both prisoners and prison officials, named by Duryea two weeks ago after Assemblyman Arthur Bell said, "We intend to study brutality, severe treatment and the situation in depth from every side before issuing any kind of report."

Yesterday's inspection of the prison was the fifth formal meeting of the study group which has also included lengthy tours of the facility with State Senator Theodore Day.

"I am confident that the report of Speaker Duryea's committee will vindicate the staff of Auburn," Riford said upon the appointment of the special study group.

Chest Changes Name, Leaders In a Positive Start for 1971

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON—The Ulster County United Way, nee, the Ulster County Community Chest, changed its name and its leaders Thursday night at its annual meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel and embarked on Campaign '71 on a positive note.

The positive was accentuated all night as Robert Brown stepped down as president and welcomed the new president, Anthony R. Triulzi. There was no mention of the Chest's failure to raise its goal for 1970 of $401,000; in fact that figure did not even appear in the annual report.

Instead, the actual amount raised, some $347,000 (in round figures) was referred to as an example of the success of the campaign. Brown, in his farewell address put it this way: "The chest area was among the highest in unemployment in the country. We raised almost the same in 1969 when unemployment was half what it was last year."

It was a time for awards. Brown presented awards to Dr. Herbert Derman, Glen Southard and Nathan Aaron for service to the Community Chest along with an award to Triulzi. Triulzi, in turn, presented an award to Brown for his services.

It was a time for promotions. Brown moved out and became past president. Triulzi, the campaign chairman last year, moved up to president and was replaced as campaign chairman by Stanley J. Petro Jr. who was assistant campaign chairman under Triulzi.

Clifford Henze, president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, was the guest speaker.

Brown, in reviewing his year's term of office, praised Dr. Derman for his work on the feasibility study on the possibility of various United Way agencies sharing facilities.

He noted the hiring of Richard W. Vendettoli as executive director stating, "We were very fortunate to get a man of his caliber for the job. He has brought a sense of cohesiveness to the community chest."

Brown concluded by saying, "I've seen a lot of new faces in the past year. This convinces me that there's a valuable reserve of leadership in our community."

Triulzi outlined a number of priorities, first of all, the need to share facilities and services by agency members, where possible.

He also noted the need "to begin to look at ourselves as the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, was the guest speaker.

This means, Triulzi said, that the fund drive this year will go into other areas of Ulster County such as Ellenville and areas of Wawarsing.

Triulzi also called for an updating of bylaws, a strong board and the need to review previous agreements between the United Way and its agencies.

Petro, the new campaign chairman, announced a meeting for March 15 to begin to select division leaders and said he expected to have his division leaders and their divisions staffed by May 15. "The time to begin is now," he said.

Petro also stressed the need for payroll deductions for the United Way. "But we have to line up the companies right now," he said, "before we solicit the employees."

Then speaking of the coming campaign, Petro said, "Our United Way agencies have to submit budgets that are realistic. We have to work with attainable figures."

Noting "a possible lack of public relations," Petro said, "We have to make it clear to the people that this is not money for a good time. This is money to help people less fortunate than we."

Henze, whose speech concluded the program, attended by some 80 persons, noted the earlier efforts of the Citizens Survey Committee, incorporated in 1963. Noting that many of the recommendations of that group in the areas of health, welfare and recreation had been implemented, Henze, nonetheless warned "if ever the maximum, 'united we stand, divided we fall,' had any real meaning it is now. No one person or any single group of people can or should be expected to do the job alone. It is a task which we all must share if we are to survive."

"I implore each one of you when you leave this room tonight to dedicate yourself to a united way of solving the problems which face our county... never forgetting that if we fail to unite now and allow our society to fall, it will be then too late to unite."

In other business, the nominating committee, chaired by Wilbur R. Peters, offered the names of Thomas M. Bloom, William Freer, Henry S. Hartley, David Kline, Petro, Mrs. Terry Staples and Ralph H. Stewart as directors for three years.

Nominated to serve as directors for two years were Henry Fallerman, Robert F. Gollnick, Robert J. Markes, Mrs. Shirley Musal and David J. Seaver.

Nominated for one-year terms were Brendon D. Alexander, Harold E. Bell, Robert Davis and S. Parks Glenn. All were approved.

Seeks Probe of Junior Board

Dutchess Lawmaker Upset

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP)—The alleged failure of several youth panel was elected by pupils in eleven school districts to an advisory body to the legislature the flag and swear loyalty to the Constitution has prompted a lawmaker to call for an investigation of the county's new Board of Junior Representatives.

The junior board held its first session with the Dutchess County legislature Tuesday. The board truly represents the majority of Dutchess County students. I fear for the country and the mockery which will be made of the electoral process," Linge remarked. He suggested a study would be made of the junior board and about half a dozen failed to join in the group oath to uphold the Constitution.

Richard Linge, R-Wappingers Falls, said Thursday he was displeased by student behavior at the session and walked out. A newsmen present reported one of the 32 junior board members refused to join in a flag salute.

Two other county officials countered Linge's criticism. County youth board chairman Bernard Gerard claimed Linge was attacking an entire group for the actions of a few.

Mrs. Freda Casner, executive director of the youth board, said that since the junior board was elected and not handicapped, it was bound to represent numerous viewpoints.

The junior board members are ages 14-21.

The Ellenville Candidates — Contrasting Views Presented

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE — The gloomy assessment of Ellenville's condition and the belief in the necessity of greater governmental involvement in community affairs of Independence mayoral candidate Robert Krieger contrasted sharply with the somewhat rosier view of Ellenville and the faith in individual initiative of incumbent mayor Robert Dowling. Krieger found himself outnumbered when it was announced that his running mate, incumbent trustee Walter Gray Rivan Krieger contrasted sharply with the somewhat rosier view of Ellenville and the faith in individual initiative of incumbent mayor Robert Dowling. Krieger found himself outnumbered when it was announced that his running mate, incumbent trustee Walter Gray Rivan Krieger contrasted sharply with the somewhat rosier view of Ellenville and the faith in individual initiative of incumbent mayor Robert Dowling.

Democratic mayoral candidate Eugene Glusker was out of town because of a death in his family.

Dowling stated he was running on his record, and proceeded to review it. He commended the street department, particularly in the areas of snow removal and equipment maintenance, and spelled out the water improvements program, currently well under way, which when completed will go a long way toward preventing a village water shortage such as the one late last summer.

He complimented the police department and Chief William C. Trappell for the department's improved morale and competence, saying that the Ellenville Village Police were no longer known as the "Keystone Cops." He pronounced the village sewage treatment plant up to state standards, the fire department adequately equipped, and the contracts with the police and municipal workers amicably negotiated.

He said the flood control program was about to start, the necessary land acquisitions having been made, and the village landfill was now up to state standards and had been approved by the County Health Department.

Dowling's plans for the future, if elected, were continued demolition in connection with the Ellenville Urban Renewal program, which he felt had made great strides in the past year, completion of the water and street improvement programs, and "a dollar value for each tax dollar spent" in municipal government.

Krieger said his election would take the village government out of the hands of politicians who had, in the past decade, caused "widespread apathy and disgusted resignation" in the community. He indicated village problems in the areas of water, sewage, sidewalks and curbs, traffic congestion, building deterioration, population growth, drug abuse, laxable property and economic growth, and had suffered a decline in what he called "village appearance prestige."

He charged the water shortage occurred through negligence, and the present water improvements program was a reaction to an emergency, and "emergencies cost money." He said proper planning and the setting aside and use of funds over the groups in Ellenville. He proposed the creation of a most of the year, and the Human Relations Board to aid the trustees in dealing with the problem.

All the candidates were asked to wait until they were completed. Hoar said he would favor the idea of meter removal, but he pointed out that Ellenville's traffic problem. All contracts would prohibit the candidates favored the park, removal of some of the meters until next year.

Ellenville was losing middle income people, he said, and this could be disastrous. To aid Ellenville in gaining taxable properties and a broader tax base, he proposed the creation of an industrial commission to seek industry and work with existing businessmen.

The loss of "village appearance prestige", Krieger said, meant "Ellenville is getting ugly." He said Urban Renewal funds were provided for a landscape architect, and he proposed that one be hired. Krieger said traditional approaches could not solve Ellenville's problems, and he was the only candidate who could break through public apathy and resignation to be a "mayor of all the people." He promised "to act with new programs as well as react."

Woodhouse, whose voice was under par because he had the flu, pledged to be an active trustee, and indicated particular interest in the problems of youth. He has been associated with the Boy Scouts and the Little League, and was a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee.

Hoar, a 10-year member of the Board of Trustees, agreed with Dowling's assessment of the village and expressed particular concern with the divisions between the various

Foreign Exchange Students Tell of U.S. Experiences

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

Foreign exchange students from several high schools in Ulster and Dutchess Counties gathered at Rhinebeck High School Thursday night to tell of their varied experiences.

The American Field Service students, who have all been in the area since September and will leave in June, spoke extemporaneously and answered questions from members of the Rhinebeck P-TA and the public.

Included were Darryl Work of New Zealand, Red Hoar, Eva C. Arza Gomez of Paraguay, Ontario; Sylvia Padilla of Bolivia, Arlington; Ingelise Rasmussen of Greenland, Millbrook; Diep Tu Mai of South Vietnam, Poughkeepsie; Aage Grutle of Norway, Rhinebeck; and Nelia Paula Regala of Philippines, Poughkeepsie.

The program kicked off a weekend which will include attendance at the Astrology Dance tonight at Rhinebeck HS; a Saturday breakfast at AFS Chair man Sally Kane's home and a free Saturday afternoon. The students will return to their American homes late Saturday.

Among the pertinent remarks made by the students: from Norway, Aage characterized his country with the midnight sun, fishing, Laps, reindeer and industry.

From Greenland, Ingelise said there were eight months of snow, doctors and dentists are free to the people and residents of Greenland (a part of Denmark) pay no taxes. She added that her father, a veterinarian, needed to be a veterinarian to be able to travel, and her mother, a nurse, needed to be a nurse to be able to travel.

From Bolivia, Sylvia Padilla said that her country was a land of ports, being connected to the sea, and even though there was snow, the climate was coming to be a pleasant surprise at first time she had seen snow.

From Paraguay, Eva said that residents are mixed blood of the Spanish conquerors and the Indians, with most people adhering to the native Indian tongue in conversation.

From New Zealand, Darryl said that he could characterize his country with three words, "rugged, racing and beer." He said that there were 50 million sheep and about 50 million people in New Zealand, and that interscholastic sports are much more a way of life with elementary school matrons and post-high school clubs.

From the Philippines, Nelia ascertained that the population explosion and the "brain drain" of professional persons to the United States was a major problem. She said she loved the United States and was anxious to return home.

From South Vietnam, Diep Tu Mai said that her country was a land of freedom, and that she had seen the rockets in the sky. She learned English in Poughkeepsie, as Vietnamese and French are the two primary languages.

Dampened Optimism on Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another big jump in wholesale prices has dampened the Nixon administration's optimism that inflation is fading, foretelling possible higher costs to consumers in the weeks ahead.

Despite the eight-tenths of one per cent increase in the preliminary wholesale price index for February, the administration pushed ahead with its drive to reduce inflation and unemployment at the same time by expanding the economy.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally told the House Appropriations Committee Wednesday the administration is not satisfied with the way the Federal Reserve Board has been expanding the money supply since September. He said the administration may not be able to accomplish its ambitious economic goals unless the independent board pumps more money into the nation's sluggish economy.

With vigorous expansion of money, the administration believes it can reduce unemployment to 4½ per cent by mid-1972 while scaling down inflation to 3 per cent.

But the Fed has cast doubt on whether the economy should expand as fast as Nixon wants this year, fearing a new wave of inflation. The February rise in wholesale prices pointed to future inflated prices for consumers, if the Labor Department's index proves to be the "barometer it has in the past." The Department said the eight-tenths of one per cent preliminary increase last month built the January and February rise in wholesale prices, to 1.5 per cent, the biggest two-month jump in 14 years.

When consumer prices slowed considerably in January, Nixon's economic advisers glowed with optimism and said it was proof of their policy of fiscal and monetary restraint of 1969 and 1970 were paying off.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics blamed the rise mainly on bad weather that kept hogs and cattle from getting to market, driving up volatile wholesale farm prices 4.5 per cent. "The effect of rugged weather on hog prices is certainly a short-range phenomenon," Labor Secretary James B. Hodgson said. But he acknowledged the boost was "more than we expected."

The key industrial goods index rose by three-tenths of one per cent, a jump that Hodgson called modest.

But wholesale prices of manufactured goods went up five-tenths of one per cent and processed foods climbed 1.4 per cent. The figures, subject to revision next week, meant that it costs $112.70 to buy wholesale what $100 bought the 1967 base year.

Hijacked Jet Lands Safely, Man in Custody

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A hijacked Western Air Lines jetliner with 94 passengers, many of them U.S. Army inductees, landed here Thursday night and a man was taken into custody by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

A spokesman at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport said the hijacking over Medford, Ore., apparently was instigated by one of the draftees. The RCMP would not say whether the man in custody was a serviceman.

A spokesman at the Flight Area Control Center here said the plane landed at 10:16 p.m. and 10 minutes later the pilot advised us the passengers were disembarking.

"A few minutes after that," he said, "we were advised that the hijacker was coming off the plane."

"I would say it went without incident."

The Boeing 737 flight originated in Ontario, Calif., and the plane had stopped in San Francisco. It was due in Seattle at 9:47 p.m.

A spokesman at Ft. Lewis, a big Army base near Tacoma, Wash., where draftees undergo basic training, said 69 seats aboard the plane had been reserved for inductees from the Oakland, Calif., area.

A Western spokesman said the plane had a crew of at least five.

In San Francisco, a spokesman for the airline said the hijacker apparently had some type of explosive device of some type, and this word was relayed to the plane's captain by a stewardess.

The spokesman said he did not know whether a federal sky-marshall was aboard. He said no one aboard the plane was injured and the plane was not damaged.

The plane was being checked in Vancouver and was expected to return to Seattle with its passengers within a few hours, the spokesman said.

FCC Approves Big Switch, TV-10 Included

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has given the go-ahead to the largest broadcasting transaction in FCC history, involving the purchase of nine AM-

Capital Cities Broadcasting Corp. is paying $110 million to Triangle Publications Stations for WFIL in Philadelphia, WNHC in New Haven, Conn., and KFRE in Fresno, Calif. To comply with federal regulations, the FCC said, Capital Cities will retain the television stations and sell the AM-FM radio stations in each of the three cities. The firm also will have to sell WROW-WTEN-TV in Albany, N. Y., and WSAZ-WSAZ-

License Festivals

Sponsors of "Rock Festivals," similar to the one held in Bethel, N. Y. in the Catskills and called the Woodstock Music and Art Festival, which attracted thousands of people and caused massive traffic tie-ups, health and sanitary crises, law enforcement problems and loss of thousands of dollars to ticket holders, should be made accountable for its management. And that is just what bills introduced in both the Senate and Assembly would do. This measure should be passed promptly.

Recommended by Attorney General Lefkowitz, the bill, aimed at control over "Rock Festivals," would require that promoters be licensed before selling any tickets. The Attorney General also would have the power to promulgate rules and regulations with respect to qualifications of promoters and would permit him to examine into the fitness of any applicant promoter. The jurisdiction of the Attorney General would be extended to cover the licensing of ticket sales and promotion of "mass gatherings" which are defined as one likely to attract 5,000 or more and continue for 12 hours or more, when admission tickets are sold.

The sponsors of the nightmare at White Lake showed a complete lack of responsibility in that they had not the slightest concern for what was going to happen. Some of the results of the "trip" were two childbirths, four miscarriages, 30 drug arrests, 400 treated for bad drug reactions. The moral aspect of the affair aside, perhaps the economic aspects hold the hope of barring a recurrence. Because the performers, motel owners and food suppliers didn't share the young people's disdain for material things, such as money, the festival was a financial flop.

There must be drastic restrictions and improvements to prevent another such occurrence.

False Alert Remedied

"It was just a matter of grabbing the wrong tape," said Louis Smoyer, director of the National Warning Center at the North American Defense Command inside Cheyenne Mountain. He was explaining the false alert which caused an authenticated national emergency message to be sent to broadcast stations across the country, causing a mild national panic last Saturday, but fortunately a short-lived one.

The remedy Smoyer devised was a simple one and should prevent a recurrence. There are two teletype tapes at NORAD. They hung on adjacent hooks. One is a message normally run at a given time Saturday mornings to test the effectiveness of the system. It states at the very beginning, "This is a test message, this is a test message."

The second tape is the real thing. It cries, "This is not a test. This is not a test. This is not a test. A state of national emergency occurs." If nuclear missiles were really on the way, President Nixon, as Commander-in-Chief, would have followed with a message to a nation suddenly engulfed in nuclear war. That this did not happen was due, first to the fact that the Emergency Broadcast System failed to work, and second because it all happened without the President's essential authorization. The tapes are now separated.

The breakdown of the emergency broadcast system would be disastrous if the alert were real. It must be corrected if the nation is to feel at ease. Its failure when actually needed could delay safeguard measures and cost countless American lives. A fortunate error for this false alert, we should now be awakened to improve all our emergency and civil defense measures.

While we still have to mount constant guard in the sky, we are not safe. Read and act upon your Civil Defense Emergency Handbook. Many in Hiroshima were saved by stone walls, stone bridges or other protection.

Girl Scout Week

During the week of March 7-13, the nation will be observing Girl Scout Week. The purpose of the Girl Scouts is to inspire girls with the highest ideals of character, conduct, patriotism and service so that they can become happy and resourceful citizens. Membership is open to all girls from seven through 17 years of age—girls who accept the Girl Scout Promise and Laws. The total membership in the Girl Scouts is nearly four million. This includes 3.25 million girls and 670,000 adults. Since 1912, there have been about 31 million members—24 million girls and seven million adults.

The first Girl Scout Troop was founded March 12, 1912 in Savannah, Ga., by Juliette Gordon Low. In a way the Girl Scouts are a counterpart of the Boy Scouts. Together they make a vast reservoir of future responsible citizenry. Whenever we are tempted to become discouraged about the future of the United States, we should recall these powerful forces for good that pervade the lives of so many youngsters. Girl Scout Week is a good time to reaffirm support of an enduring organization that helps to guarantee a strong and lasting nation.

David Lawrence Says U.S. Position Plain Enough For N. Vietnam to Make Move

WASHINGTON — There must be something wrong with the communication facilities of the North Vietnamese government. Either the significant news doesn't arrive in Hanoi or it doesn't get translated properly from English. Thus, for example, Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong Foreign Minister and Chief Negotiator at the Vietnam Peace Talks in Paris, told the press in Rome on February 23:

"When the United States agrees to withdraw all forces from Indochina, the government of North Vietnam will take into consideration the release of prisoners."

But the President of the United States, on February 17 in a news conference, had said:

"As long as the North Vietnamese have any Americans as prisoners of war, there will be Americans in South Vietnam and enough Americans to give them an incentive to release the prisoners."

The president was then asked if he would be willing to join Congress in a resolution saying the intention of the United States is to withdraw all its troops from Vietnam. He replied that it is not needed because in a speech last October he had called for "A total withdrawal of all forces if it was mutual." He added:

"So, the policy of this government is for a total withdrawal, provided there is a withdrawal by the other side."

The United States, therefore, has certainly made clear that it will not retain troops in South Vietnam if the prisoners of war are released and enemy forces are withdrawn.

Thus, it is surprising to read an announcement that seems to indicate that Hanoi and the Viet Cong have never heard of American policy on the release of prisoners of war. Obviously, there could have been more progress made in the peace negotiations at Paris during the last several months if President Nixon's proposal for a complete withdrawal of all forces by mutual agreement could have been worked out, but communication with the enemy even across the peace table seems ineffective.

It now should be clear to Hanoi, however, that the time has come for North Vietnam to begin meaningful negotiations. The president put it this way in his news conference last Thursday:

"We will continue to pursue the diplomacy for a primary reason, the primary reason being to negotiate some settlement of the prisoner-of-war issue."

"We have to realize that, as far as the negotiations affecting a political settlement for South Vietnam is concerned, time is running out for the North Vietnamese if they expect to negotiate with the United States. Because, as our forces come out of South Vietnam, it means that the responsibility for the negotiations increasingly, then, becomes that of South Vietnam."

The president also remarked that the United States is constantly examining the possibility of diplomatic initiatives. He did state, though, that there are no more concessions coming from our side to North Vietnam. Mr. Nixon feels that the time is at hand for the North Vietnamese to act on the principles that America has already laid down.

The opportunity of the North Vietnamese to wind up the war should have been enhanced by the announcement that the release of American prisoners would hasten our total withdrawal. That's why it is strange to read what the Viet Cong Foreign Minister said to the press seven days after the president's public announcement at a news conference in Washington. Maybe the bureaucracy in Hanoi selects only certain information, favorable to their cause, for transmittal to the officials in the highest level of their government.

The United States has made its position plain enough for some move to be taken by North Vietnam to begin fruitful negotiations at Paris to end the war. The first item on the agenda should be arrangements for the release of the hundreds of Americans who are being held hostage in North Vietnamese prison camps.

What the Hanoi government does in the next few weeks will have a crucial influence on world opinion. A refusal to consider any action may answer the critics who have felt that the United States alone is responsible for the continuance of the war.

GEORGE WAS FIRST BUT ABE WAS RIGHT

Of the two great presidents born in February, 7 out of 10 persons prefer to read about Abraham Lincoln. The reason is obvious: George Washington was a pluperfect perfectionist. He was "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." He was dull because he knew it. I can't imagine Washington getting a polished boot wet crossing the Delaware; or descending to shiver at Valley Forge; or stepping backward in modesty when he was proposed for the presidency of the United States. I can't even envision him holding Martha in his arms without ruffling his wig.

Lincoln was a tall, tired man with cavernous eyes and big slow-lifting feet, a president enmeshed in portentous gloom. He was superstitious to the point where he would flip a desk Bible open every morning and he believed that the day would be akin to whatever psalm or verse his eye lighted on.

For weeks before his assassination he was beset by a recurring dream in which he awakened in the White House and heard whispering. In each dream, he tiptoed downstairs in his nightshirt with a crude shawl on his shoulders, and saw many people in the East Room weeping.

"Why are they crying?" he would say to a soldier. "Don't you know?" the sentry would say. "The president is dead." And Abraham Lincoln would thread his way through, walk up two steps on a catafalque, and look down at his face, serene in death. He could not rid himself of the dream until the night a steel ball, a quarter inch in diameter, drilled its way through the back of his head, and stopped behind his right eye.

The dream stopped. The dream was realized. His wife was a shrew who nagged him all the days of their years. She bought as many as 200 pairs of gloves at a time. She referred to him in a shrill voice as "Mister Lincoln," the attitude of a lady who thought that "Abe" might seem too intimate. The White House greengrocer surrendered to her tongue one day and told the president that he was sorry, but he would not deliver groceries any more because Mrs. Lincoln's tirades about prices were driving him crazy.

Lincoln put his arm around the grocer's shoulder. "Can you not stand for 15 minutes what I have stood for 15 years?" he said. The grocer felt ashamed. He continued to serve the White House. Nor was Mrs. Lincoln above petty jealousy. At an Easter lawn reception, she took scissors from her pocketbook and sheared a peach-colored velvet ribbon from a visiting lady's hat.

Martha Washington wouldn't be caught dead snipping anything less than a primrose from her garden. But then, the Washingtons were aristocrats accustomed to wearing lacy cuffs and silver buckles on their shoes. Abe Lincoln was a plodder, the butt of jokes and a sad raconteur of amusing stories. He was common, and therein lay his greatness.

He was uncluttered with culture and had no preconceived notions of the correct thing to do. George, on the other hand, once placed his army in Boston and sent for refined ladies so that he and his officers could stage a cotillion with proper music and proper wine. Lincoln couldn't dance if a friend gave him a hotfoot.

When he wrote the Emancipation Proclamation, one of the great events of Lincoln's administration, he was not the altruistic friend of the Negro. His generals, in 1862, had advised him that Robert E. Lee would not have so many soldiers if the slaves were not home manning the farms and the plantations. Lincoln's original idea was to free only the slaves in the South.

Nor, sadly, did he want to attend Ford's Theatre on the night he was shot. He would have preferred to remain in the White House conversing with Congressman Ashmun about the correct and merciful way of treating the South now that the Civil War was over. He had seen the play, "Our American Cousin," before, and the dialogue was loaded with puns.

Mrs. Lincoln wanted to go, solely because she wanted to be seen with General and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant. The general was the hero of the hour. Mrs. Lincoln wanted to arrive late, in Act One, and hear the applause ring out and take a bow with the Grants to a standing ovation. But she failed in that, too. The Grants — especially Mrs. Grant — did not like Mrs. Lincoln. The general asked the president to excuse him on the grounds that he and his wife wanted to visit their children in Burlington County, New Jersey.

People who study Lincoln and the great men, North and South, of his time, seldom life of it. But if Lincoln had been in George Washington's army, he'd have never made corporal...

Jack Anderson Says Army Can't Locate Enemy Weapons, Mines, Booby Traps

WASHINGTON—The Pentagon has spent billions since the end of World War II to improve our tactical warfare capability. Yet our ability to locate enemy fire, to score battlefield hits, to deliver close air support and to detect mines and booby traps is little better today than it was in 1945.

The waste in dollars has been less appalling than the cost in lives. Thousands of men have died in Korea and Vietnam because of the technical incompetence of our defense contractors.

Despite the enormous sums they have been paid, the contractors have failed to develop many improvements that would make ground combat less deadly for the infantry. Indeed, dirt soldiers do more of the dying today than they did in World War II. More than 80 per cent of our battle casualties in Vietnam have been infantrymen.

There's no telling how many have paid with their lives because companies have put profits ahead of progress. All too often, defense contractors have kept their profits up by holding the standards down. They have accomplished this by cultivating and coddling the brass hats who set the standards.

In past columns, we have told how the great corporations court the Pentagon's big brass with cocktails and caviar, expense-account entertainment and tempting job offers. Out of this cozy relationship have come contract specifications tailored to maximize profits, to perpetuate programs and renew contracts.

Advances in tactical warfare have been held back, too, because of bickering between the Army and Air Force and because of pride in weapons which were completely outmoded.

Contractors fail GI's While other contractors have succeeded in landing men on the moon, the mighty military-industrial complex has been unable to clear mines and booby-traps out of the paths of our foot soldiers. Result: The casualties from these pernicious devices have been comparatively higher in Vietnam than in any previous war.

It also takes our troops longer to neutralize an enemy bunker today than it did during World War II. They are still obliged to assault the bunker with small arms and explosive charges. The most modern method of planting explosives is to poke them into the bunker on the end of a long pole.

Of all our men who have died on Vietnam battlefields, almost 70 per cent were killed by fragmenting projectiles. The casualties from flying shrapnel have been almost 30 per cent higher than our troops encountered in the Pacific during World War II. Yet in an age of multi-million-dollar missile systems and million-dollar overruns, defense contractors haven't figured out how to locate the weapons that fire these shells. An Army specialist, who has been working on a secret study entitled "Indirect Fire Hostile Weapons," has told us:

"Assume that the enemy will employ the hills and trees, or dig holes in the ground, to hide his guns from direct observation. In this situation, our ability to locate his weapons, the ones firing these fragmenting projectiles, is ridiculously and unbelievably unacceptable."

"But even if we should find

Bombs Wasted on Laos 'Trail'?

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) Never in history has so much airborne firepower been delivered against a stretch of tangled jungle as U.S. planes and helicopter gunships have been unloading on the celebrated Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos.

Precise measures on this operation are hard to come by. Official U.S. statements about the number of sorties (a sortie is one flight by one aircraft) are deliberately general. And the figures offered for the trail vary from 330 to around 380 sorties per day.

Within the framework of these differing averages, senior Defense Department officials are willing to say that, weather permitting, some 30 giant B-52 bombers make the trail run daily.

Since each B-52 carries 30 tons of bombs, these particular forays account for 900 tons a day. This means that in a little more than two months of uninterrupted bombing, 30 B-52s can plaster the trail with explosives equal in tonnage to all that dropped on Britain in the World War II Nazi blitz of 1940-41.

The B-52s, of course, are just part of the story. F-4 and F-205 fighter-bombers, plus the touted gunships, daily pour hundreds of additional tons of bombs and rockets onto North Vietnam's chief supply route to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Military men will not say how much it costs to operate this daily bombardment shuttle over the Ho Chi Minh trail. But plainly the expense is great. And it leads to the further question of how much interdiction of Red supplies we are getting for our money.

Whatever it is, it is not enough or the South Vietnamese army, with our very active support, would not now be trying to disrupt the trail on the ground.

Timely Quotes

If the war could be ended by the issuance of anguished statements by university presidents, it would have ended long ago. But the war can only be ended by hard and sustained political work. Too few people in universities have been willing to do that kind of work. Instead, we have allowed a situation to develop in which the antiwar movement gets written off by large sections of the public as the aberration of a few "campus crazies."

—President Richard W. Lyman of Stanford University.

The U.S. Air Force is very sensitive on this point. It does not like the occasional utterances here and in Saigon which declare the trail bombing largely ineffective.

Probably that judgment is indeed too harsh. It is more accurate to say the raids don't do as much as we would like them to. Defense officials sometimes produce trail traffic tonnages in support of claims of rising effectiveness in Air Force and other air assaults. Out of the welter of talk comes mostly confusion.

One officer, for instance, says it is likely no more than 20 per cent of North Vietnam's trail tonnage makes it into Cambodia and South Vietnam. Other sources say, however, that half the total gets through.

With at least two kinds of well-distributed electronic sensors being constantly placed at trail entry points and along the way, the measure of "trail input" may be fairly good. In the current dry season, it is fixed at roughly 26,000 tons so far. A fairly recent dry-season high was 60,000 tons.

Gauging what goes out is something else. First off, a way to locate his weapons, our ability to bring these weapons under effective fire is not only vanishingly small, it's totally unknown."

Helmet, Armor Obsolete

Experts also charge that thousands of men, who have been killed in Vietnam by flying shrapnel, could have been saved if the Army helmet had been designed to give greater neck and forehead protection and if armored vests had been better designed and universally used.

GIs still use a helmet, known grumpily as the steel pot, which was designed during World War I and used with only minor alterations during World War II. One expert calls it "totally, hopelessly, even scandalously inadequate." And the armored vests are only slightly different from the models used in the later stages of the Korean War.

The Navy and Air Force, meanwhile, have developed fancy aircraft that can soar over Vietnam faster than sound. Yet these multi-million-dollar planes are unable to support our ground troops in close combat. The delivery errors of air-delivered ordnance make it essentially impossible to use air support in most firefights.

Complained an Army official: "Even though we have long been aware of the distance between our troops and the enemy—usually 20 to 50 meters in Vietnam—we haven't improved our air-delivery marksmanship adequately. We keep sending in the strings of infantry to do the job, just as we did in the Civil War, and then call for an increase in the draft."

Stomach Pains

Air Force enlisted men, who have received intense training in such specialties as linguistics, have complained to us that they should have studied cooking. For cooks go up the promotion ladder faster than the specialists, whose small number limits their advancement possibilities.

In the hush-hush Security Service, for example, the step up from two to three stripes is painfully slow. But the flapjack artists can easily pick up a third stripe.

much of the supply load may be safely stored in caves, warehouses, etc. for many months at stations along the trail. One purpose of the present South Vietnamese invasion is to get at some of this stuff.

Secondly, in their candid moments U.S. defense officials acknowledge that the Ho Chi Minh trail—at its "out-pout" terminals—breaks into endless capillary routes traversed by men on foot and virtually impervious to bombing. We can't stop outflow at that stage.

What our official appraisers do is count supposed "truck kills" by bombers and gunships on the trail, multiply the number by a tonnage-per-truck factor, and achieve an "interdiction" estimate. Yet the means of checking kills may be faulty.

There is nothing in history to equal the difficulty of bombing effectively a many-channelled supply line flowing under thick jungle canopy, mostly at night. It is a marvel we hit anything by design. Air officials would be better off if they stressed their understandable targeting problems instead of exaggerated, puzzling claims.

When Doorbell Balks ... Repair It

By MR. FIX

The doorbell always rings when you don't want it to. There are worse things how- ever. Like not having the bell work at all. Repairing a door- bell is one of the simpler tasks around the house.

Likeliest spot for trouble is the push button. Remove it with a screwdriver. You can then examine the back of it. Both wires should be connected firm- ly to the terminal screws be- hind the button. If one is off, you have found the trouble right away.

If both wires are properly connected, hold the screwdriver blade so that it touches both terminals at the same time. If you can hear the bell now, the trouble is with the push button.

Contact points behind the but- ton cap may need cleaning, something you can do with a bit of sandpaper. If you can't get at the contact points, dis- card the push button and in- stall a new one. They are in- expensive.

If the trouble is not at that end, then you will have to check the electrical source. Ordinary house current is too strong for a doorbell, so it is stepped down by means of a trans- former. You will find the trans- former by following the bell wire, single strand wire that is thinner than regular house wire.

The transformer will be fast- ened to the ceiling of the base- ment somewhere or near the fuse box. There are primary terminals and secondary ter- minals on a transformer. The primary terminals have the house wiring attached. Stay clear of those. The secondary terminals are for the bell wire leading to the button. You can check these—and only these—with the blade of your screw- driver. A tiny spark when you touch the blade across both terminals indicates the transform- er is O.K. The bell itself could be caus- ing trouble. Connections may be loose or contacts dirty. Maybe the contacts are not making contact. You may find broken parts on examination.

If you cannot clean or repair the bell, replace it.

If the trouble is not with the 4:45 a.m. and was reported bell, check the wiring. There under control at 6 a.m.

may be breaks in it, or some point where the bare wire is exposed, causing a short. If the wire is suspect, replace it with new. Since it runs through floors and walls, the easiest way is to fasten the new wire to the old and pull the old wire out, pulling in the new at the same time.

The likeliest trouble spots are the button and the bell. Transformers seldom wear out and unless the wire has been subject to rubbing, there isn't much that is going to go wrong with it.

You can prevent trouble by periodically checking bell and button, especially if perfor- mance is erratic. Make certain terminal screws are kept tight and that contacts are clean and you are not likely to have any trouble.

Views Vary On Complex In Esopus

An in depth review of the proposed $3 to $5 million apartment complex at Aero Lake near here was presented to Esopus Businessmen's Association Thursday night by Planning Board Chairman Chester DuMont and there were divergent views as to the benefits for the township.

DuMont explained that Vincent J. Doce Associates is a promoter which purchased the property, obtained the required permit and presented the package deal to interested developers. He reviewed the conferences and various facets of the proposal and the problems of water and sewerage.

Richard Williams, immediate past president of the association expressed his disfavor and asked if the town needed it and if the benefits outweighed the costs to the community.

Ulster County Legislator Lewis Kirschner, D-7th Dist., and several others in at- tendance indicated they favored the project. Kirschner said it would bring a shopping center to the township and local residents could then shop at home.

DuMont further advised that the Hudson River Valley Commission had not as yet approved the project.

Nurses Plan March in Albany On Tuesday, Mar. 2

The New York State Nurses' Association will sponsor a march in Albany to petition legislators to support the proposed changes in the Nurse Practice Act.

District No. II of the New York State Nurses' Association requests all nurses petition Assemblyman H. Clark Bell to support A 2065-Pisani, and Senator J. P. Rolison Jr. to support S 1918-Laverne. Those who can join the march in Albany are requested to assemble in uniform at 10:30 a.m. at D and H Plaza at the foot of State Street and Broadway in Albany on Tuesday, Mar. 2. From there, nurses, will march to the Capitol building from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Primarily the changes focus on the role of the nurse as an independent health practitioner in contrast to the traditional handmaiden under the direction of a physician.

The new act will provide a legal framework in which nursing can continue to expand its role in relation to scientific changes. The scope of practice of the practical nurse is defined, as is the profession of nursing's responsibility for delegation of functions to this group.

The association desires that nursing disregard the distinctions between the associate degree, diploma and BSN graduate of nursing and define a nurse as one who holds a license to practice the profession of nursing.

Several health professions are currently interested in providing a guarantee of the continuing competence of their practitioners. The New York State Nurses' Association also desires to ensure the public that nurses are competent and will make opportunities available for continuing education as a requirement for renewal of registration.

Hints from Heloise for Today's Busy Woman

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise: Recently my teenage daughter and I redecorated her bedroom. She wanted to dispose of the rather expensive custom-made drapes on the windows and get some new frillier ones, but I did not feel this would be practical.

We had covered her double closet doors with a wildly floral adhesive-backed plastic paper, so as a compromise we cut flowers out of this same patterned adhesive-backed plastic and stuck the cut-outs at random all over the custom drapes.

It made her room look much more "girly-fied," and she is now quite pleased with her curtains.

My "scotch nature" is happy and any time we want to restore the drapes to their original custom-look, we can just remove the cut-outs.

Julia Welsh
What a groovy Mom you are. Isn't it amazing what a little "Flower Power" can do for a teenage girl's room!

..... Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have read about many women who put notes in their husband's lunch boxes.

Well, my husband travels a lot so I put notes in his suitcases. They are just little "I love you" notes and "We miss you" notes from the kids.

folded clothes, travel alarm, shaving kit, etc.

He says they really help to cheer him up when he's out on the road away from home.

..... A Reader

Dear Heloise:

If you have a little one who is a problem eater, sometimes it will help if you will buy a few small dishes that fit the little one's size. Like an extra small stemmed dessert dish; a small novelty tea cup or glass; or an extra small saucer.

Often they will eat several helpings and like it.

..... Pat

Dear Heloise:

My mother wrote you about her use of mustard bottles (with the pump) for mayonnaise, jelly and catsup.

Well, I discovered something else you can use them for—cream!

I can now get just the amount I need for my cereal.

BIRD HOUSES

If you have an interest in birds, the winter is the time to think of bird feeding. It is also the time to build bird houses, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. An excellent way to use some of the scrap lumber in your basement or shed is to cut and nail it into a bird box.

The Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology suggest that all of the plans necessary for building bird boxes, from the simple to the elaborate can be found in the new edition of the booklet — "Homes for Birds". This entirely revised version of a long time favorite United States Government Publication can be obtained by writing the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 10711. It also provides plans for bird feeders and recommends plants attractive to birds. What better way to spend a winter evening than in your work area making bird houses or feeders.

If you prefer you may stop in at Extension Headquarters, 74 John Street, Kingston, N.Y., and pick up a Cornell Bulletin "Inviting Bird Neighbors" for 25 cents — which has much the same information.

All men and women of the Auxiliary and friends are invited to attend. A short business meeting will take place after the program.

The February meeting of Halcyon Park Home Extension took place recently at the home of Mrs. Beverly Shymow. Refreshments were served by June West and Vivian Caldwell.

Good grooming was the topic for the evening. Mrs. Barbara Stewart demonstrated the correct way to apply makeup and Mrs. Mary Eppard demonstrated "The Perfect Manicure."

Members are collecting Betty Crocker coupons for the kidney machine and are aiding the Home Extension in its Home Nutrition Program by collecting used clothing, pots and pans.

The March meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Jan Callot, Douglas Drive. The topic will be "Storage of Children's Items."

Covered Dish Luncheon will be held by Wiltwyck Homemakers Club at the meeting room, 410 Broadway, at noon on Tuesday, Mar. 2. After the business meeting, Easter favors will be made.

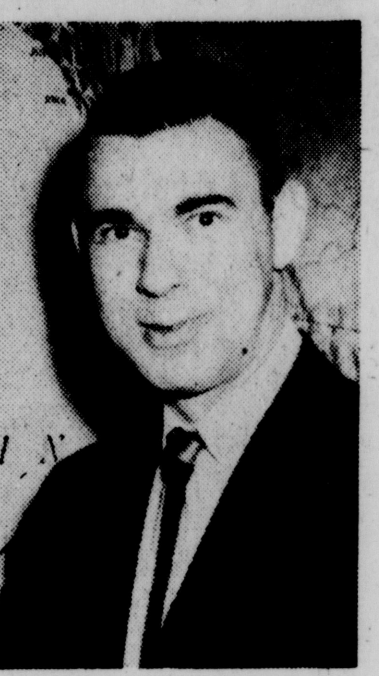

Speaker Is Named For Y-Wives Meeting

A program on all aspects of travel in the United States and abroad has been scheduled by Y-Wives for their meeting on Thursday, Mar. 4 at 8 p.m. The program is under the direction of Herbert K. Greenwald and will also include a question and answer session.

Mr. Greenwald's firm has been active in this area since 1905 and has always been family-owned and operated. He is a member of the Institute of Certified Travel Agents and has traveled extensively to all corners of the world and has many interesting personal experiences which make the program unusual.

Members have guest privileges for the travel program. Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Alfred J. Port, Mrs. Warren S. Van Kleeck and Mrs. Herbert H. Reuner.

Due to a change in the program schedule for March, members are asked to note that on March 18th Mrs. Emma Bonestell will discuss

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
(© 1971, Emily Post Institute, Inc.)
DEAR MRS POST: A friend of mine has a touchy problem. Her parents are divorced, her father has remarried and her mother and father no longer speak to each other. When my friend's daughter is graduated from high school in the spring, she wants all three grandparents to attend. Of course, they will expect to sit with my friend and her husband, but no one would be comfortable if they all were together.

CONCERNED FRIEND
Dear Concerned Friend: Graduation day should be a happy occasion for the graduate. Both grandparents should be invited, with the understanding that the other also is invited. The grandparents are causing the problem, and they should swallow their feelings for the girl's sake. If one grandparent feels he cannot accept the situation, he should refuse the invitation. If both attend and have been forewarned, I am sure they will act graciously.

As far as seating goes, your friend should seat each parent in a different row, and she and her husband and the graduate's brothers and sisters or aunts and uncles should sit in still another.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question that I receive each week, I will send a free copy of Emily Post's "Etiquette." The question chosen, and its answer, will be published in this column every Friday. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper, and don't forget to include your name and address.

I have received several letters objecting to my column concerning the girl who received a charitable contribution as an engagement present. I upheld the grandmother's opinion that this was not an appropriate gift.

First, I am in favor of charitable contributions, and I do not lack compassion for the many who benefit from them. I also feel that engagement and wedding gifts are forms of charity. To most young couples, the gifts they receive are essential to start housekeeping. They are rarely, as one reader put it, "5¢ plastic monstrosities." The gifts also serve as a permanent memento of the persons who give them.

I do not think it is right to deprive a bride of her gifts, certainly not without letting the choice be hers.

My booklet, "How to Plan and Budget Your Wedding," is ideal for brides-to-be, their fiancés and parents in helping to prepare for the "perfect" wedding. To get a copy, send 35 cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

Coach House Players is offering William Inge's hit DARK AT THE TOP OF THE STAIRS at the J. Watson Bailey School. The three-day run, which opened last night, played to a full house. It is nicely paced, balanced and accurately reflects the author's setting of the 1920's. The favorable staging of Inge's play is a direct result of Director Bill Skilling's experienced theatrical sense.

Molding the roles of mother, husband and sister, the three outstanding characters in DARK AT THE TOP OF THE STAIRS, are Nina Werbalowsky, Samuel Tesoriero and Julia Callahan. All three are skillful in their handling of Inge's plot based on family problems and involvements — a Mama's boy, a wallflower daughter, marital squabbles, dating, religious discriminations. Inge feathers these subjects throughout his three act drama.

Nina Werbalowsky gives a sensitive interpretation to the mother's part. She is successful in portraying tenderness and concern in dealing with her "stage" family. Nina is not a stranger to the stage. She has appeared in such plays as THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER, ALL MY SONS and KIND LADY. Since joining Coach House Players, she has performed in ENTER LAUGHING, THE GREAT SEBASTIANS and GUYS AND DOLLS.

Tesoriero comes through as the typical bombastic father image while Julia Callahan weaves what little comic relief there is in this production into her smooth portrayal of an older sister. Tesoriero has played a variety of roles for Coach House. He has even appeared in the Woodstock Playhouse production of DON'T DRINK THE WATER. Julia Callahan, a native of England, received her training and appeared in many productions at the University of Leeds as well as with various civic and community theatre groups. She taught acting, voice and diction at the University of Kansas.

As for the children, Director Skilling scores again in casting West Hurley lad Russell Kreuger in the son's role and KHS sophomore Mary Marshall as the daughter. Stage children are more often than not a problem but this doesn't seem to be the case for Coach House. The youngsters hold their own in this production.

Diane Kuba, cast as the daughter's flapper friend, received strong audience approval while rounding out the cast are Harry Sommer, the brother-in-law; John Alecca

Weather Big Factor — Palmer Skies to 75

Nicklaus' 69 Leads PGA Field by Stroke

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Mother Nature simply refused to enlist in "Arnie's Army."

He couldn't even draft her. "Those putting greens are loaded with fertilizer and, with all that sun, you could almost hear them growing" said a downtrodden Arnold Palmer. "My last chance was the rain. That didn't work out either."

Palmer shot a puny 75 on opening day of the 53rd PGA Championship. He was a world behind fellow super star Jack Nicklaus and a pack command-ing factor in this championship said Palmer, "no matter what the weather."

Nicklaus and the morning crowd ripped PGA National Golf Club during relatively calm weather, a dozen breaking par on the tough 7,096 yard course.

It was different after lunch. Only four matinee shooters outdid the par 36-72 test while Palmer—with adoring thousands dying at his side—was crushing his own hope for an elusive first PGA title.

Former Masters champion Bob Goalby, red-faced Bobby Mitchell and left hander Bob Charles of New Zealand were closest to Nicklaus with two-under-par 70s.

The most severe challenge was looming from the star-spangled group at 71 that included ex-U.S. Open kings Julius Boros, Billy Casper, Gary Player, Lee Trevino and Tony Jacklin.

"We all sat around hoping the rain would quit," said Nicklaus, who is hosting Jacklin and Player at his new home for the week.

"You hate to see a good day's work go out the window." Also poised among the challengers at one-under 71 were oldtimer Sam Snead, Bert Yancey, Deane Beman, Bruce Devlin and young Johnny Miller.

Defending PGA champ Dave Stockton struggled in with a 72 and 1971's leading money winner, Tom Shaw, was square with his idol, Palmer, at a non-contending 75.

As Palmer rambled unhappily through his round for the news corps, rain pounded on the tent with several groups of players still on the lush, green course.

"The only thing that would make me happy is for the bottom to fall out," he said. "We need to wash the slate clean." A PGA official with a walkietalkie was contacting a supervisor on the course. Palmer listened intently for some breath of hope.

"What did he say?" asked Arnold. "They're still playing," answered the PGA man.

Palmer hitched his drenched trousers and walked away, knowing his chances for completing a grand slam this time were as damp as the tent's floor.

The 41-year-old winner of four Masters, two British Opens and one U.S. Open used 35 putts—including what he called a "mad stroke" on the ninth hole—in his 40-35-75.

Not even birdie putts from 12, 15 and eight feet on the back nine could wipe away the pain.

"I three-putted from four feet on No. 9," Arnold recalled. "The second putt was from about six inches. I hit it and it jumped out of the cup. I was a little bit careless. Guess you'd call it a mad stroke."

Palmer suffered a double-bogey six on the 465-yard hole.

While Arnie died by his putting blade, Nicklaus was ramming home crucial blows that "let me escape on a day when I didn't deserve to shoot 69."

As the afternoon rain fell, Nicklaus was hitting practice shots at Lost Tree Village Country Club. That's across the road from the Golden Bear's plush new home, a five-mile drive up the street from PGA National Club.

"My round told me I needed some work," he said. "I hit the ball better after going home in the afternoon. We'll see what happens tomorrow (Friday) afternoon."

Nicklaus faced a late teeoff time today as the field switched sides for the second 18 holes. The low 70 men and ties would make the 36-hole cutdown and play the closing rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Palmer gave Nicklaus an idea of what to expect. "When you play early, the greens are freshly cut and put pretty well," said Arnold. "Later, the sun and showers and all that fertilizer allows them to grow. The green starts becoming a monster."

Nicklaus enjoys rock-hard greens, "not so much because I putt so well on them, but because I usually handle fast surfaces better than most other golfers."

Even in the morning Thursday, Jack classified the PGA greens as "pretty slow."

Nicklaus scrambled through most of the course's well-conditioned acres and 11 one-putt greens made his day the same way putting wiped out Palmer.

He rolled through the final 10 holes with eight one-putt greens.

Palmer—noted for his charges—had a beaut of a challenge on his hands shortly after dawn today. First, he needed to make the cut . . . and another 75 would almost certainly send him home early.

Palmer refused to explode after the round, even when somebody asked if the effort disappointed him. He faked a grin and said sarcastically: "I'm really happy. It was a helluva day. I enjoyed it. The greens were smooth and the ball rolled well."

Marquette Beats Rams in Overtime . . . But

Fordham Wants Another Chance

By FRED MCMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Dick Phelps, coach of Fordham University, wants another shot at second-ranked Marquette, and he hopes to get it in the NCAA tournament at Houston.

Phelps, whose spirited Rams lost to Marquette, 85-80, in overtime Thursday night, indicated that his club would pass up the local National Invitation Tournament for a bid to the NCAA tournament and possibly another shot at the Warriors.

"I'd love to get you in Houston," Phelps said to Al McGuire, coach of Marquette, following the Warriors' exciting victory before a capacity crowd of 19,500 at Madison Square Garden. "We've got everything to gain and nothing to lose."

"Suppose they move you to the Midwest regionals?" quipped McGuire, referring to last season when he passed up a bid to the NCAA and went to the NIT because his team was placed in the NCAA Midwest regionals instead of the preferred Midwest regionals.

Fordham, which is ranked No. 9 gave Marquette its toughest game of the season and had it not been for the Warriors' 6-foot-11 center, Jim Chones, the verdict might have gone the other way. Chones scored 22 points in the game including seven during the overtime session, collected 15 rebounds and blocked a half-dozen shots.

Even so, the Rams had a chance to win at the end of regulation time but George Zambetti, a substitute center, missed the first of a one-and-one free throw situation with 30 seconds left and Marquette got the rebound and held the ball until the final shot.

"The turning point of the game was when Zambetti missed the one-on-one," said Phelps. "It was a great game. They just outplayed us and deserved to win."

McGuire, while not admitting that the Rams were the best team Marquette has faced this season, did confess that Phelps had done an outstanding coaching job.

"Fordham is the best coached team I've ever seen," said McGuire. "I am surprised beyond words that they're that well coached. A team as small as Fordham is continually at a mismatch, like some of my old teams, but they handled other teams better than any other team during our winning streak."

Marquette's winning streak has now reached 34, including 22 in a row this season.

McGuire also had high praise for the Rams' Charley Yelverton, who despite sitting out more than 10 minutes because of foul trouble, connected on 10 of 12 shots from the field and led all scorers with 25 points.

"Yelverton is a great ball player and he'll be a great pro," said McGuire.

Yelverton, in turn, admitted he was impressed with Marquette's teamwork but did not acknowledge the Warriors as the best team the Rams had played this season.

"Talent-wise, they're not as good as California," said Yelverton. "But they work so well together."

Oddly enough, McGuire was not that impressed with the play of Chones.

"There's such a thing as Gardentitis, and my two sophomores got it tonight," said McGuire. "People who have never seen Chones play before might have been impressed with his play tonight, but I've seen him play much better."

Overtime seemed to be the order of the day Thursday night as three other major games were decided in an extra session. Syracuse, gunning for an NIT bid, beat Rutgers, another NIT hopeful, 88-81, in double overtime; Tulsa nipped Memphis State, 94-91, in double overtime and St. Louis edged Wichita State, 73-72, in overtime.

In other games, Houston whipped Lamar Tech, 93-74; Santa Clara defeated Nevada for Rutgers, now 13-7.

Italy's Thoeni Cops 2nd Slalom of Season

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — The Gunbarrell slope at Heavenly Valley has been getting faster every day, which suits World Cup ski leader Gustavo Thoeni of Italy just fine.

"It was icy, but I like that kind of course," the 19-year-old Italian said Thursday after an impressive victory in the men's slalom on the second day of World Cup Alpine racing here.

Thoeni was the fastest man down the hill on both runs as he won his second slalom of the season and increased his World Cup point total from 140 to 145.

Henri Duvillard of France broke a second place tie with teammate Patrick Russel by placing fifth and also gaining five points in the standings, to 130.

Only three races remain on the men's World Cup schedule and Thoeni said Thursday, "I'll have to win a giant slalom, I think" to get the championship.

The first run of the Heavenly Valley men's giant slalom was Rick Chaffee of Rutland, Vt., was sixth and Eric Poulsen of Olympic Valley, Calif., ninth.

On today's schedule along with the women's giant slalom, which will have only one run. The men's event will end Saturday with a second run.

Tyler Palmer of Kearsarge, N.H., took third in the men's slalom, highest of three American skiers in Thursday's top 10 finishers.

Rick Chaffee of Rutland, Vt., was sixth and Eric Poulsen of Olympic Valley, Calif., ninth.

NFA Eyes D.C. But Kingston Comes First

KINGSTON and hoping to enter a major post-season tournament. "We have to keep going," Burkoski said as he prepared to bring his 14-0 Goldbacks here. "The invitation to the Knights of Columbus Tournament in Washington is contingent on a perfect season." It's no wonder why the Newburgh people are anxious to get to D. C. and sightseeing has nothing to do with the idea. The Goldbacks were rated No. 1 by the State's sportswriters until they mysteriously fell to second and then to third around the same time reports were published that Newburgh had refused to meet tough Mount Vernon. Rumors began to circulate that NFA didn't want to meet such rough opposition and the Goldback supporters who believed such things started to look elsewhere. Truth is that Newburgh tried to schedule Mount Vernon, now No. 2, but the Westchester team refused. The Goldbacks also tried to get Lutheran of Long Island and Don Bosco of New Jersey on their slate, but they too would not meet the Orange County quintet. But the Washington event could bring Newburgh, Mount Vernon and top-rated St. Agnes of Rockville Center together to settle all questions and the Goldbacks are anxious for that to happen. However, Kingston and the Section Nine tourney come first to schedule Mount Vernon, now No. 2, but the Westchester team five doesn't get by those tests. The D.C. trip won't even come about. "Our aim is an undefeated season and Section Nine title," he re-emphasized, "and we'll let the ratings fall where they may." Burkoski's starters are known even to the casual basketball fan. The names Jim Rodgers, Wade Pittman, George Bucci, Larry Frazier and Ralph Petrillo have instilled fear in most places but local fans can take solace in the knowledge that one of the first stringers won't appear tonight. Unfortunately for Maroon backers, the missing Goldback will be Petrillo, sidelined by the flu, but believed to be the most expendable member of the starting quintet, Ron Smith will replace him. Burkoski, who has been quoted as calling Kingston the team of the future, was impressed by freshman Herman Simon when the schools first met in January and why not? Herman had 30 points and earned a standing ovation from the Newburgh fans. But a suspension and ankle injury makes Simon questionable for tonight even though Burkoski doesn't think so. "I know about Herman Simons suspension, but we expect to see him in the lineup against us." One thing the Newburgh mentor admits is that his team is "ripe — ripe for an upset." He made the remark after a practice session Tuesday following a six day layoff. And Burkoski is aware that if any team on the regular schedule is going to pull such an upset it will be Kingston. REBOUNDS: A limited number of tickets for the game will go on sale in the Field House box office at 6 p. m.

Ulster Topples Dutchess, 81-73 And Waits

POUGHKEEPSIE Ulster County Community College outclassed Dutchess, 81-73, in its "must game" here Thursday night, but the jury is still out on a possible Region XV Tournament invitation, an elated Coach Mike Perry said. "The situation is still fluid," said the UCCC mentor who saw his squad continue its fine late-season spurge en route to its 16th win against 11 losses.

Perry pointed out that there are only five firm picks — Suffolk Community as the host, Westchester Community, Mid-Hudson Conference champions with a 9-1 record; New York City Community, Manhattan and Fashion Institute. Ulster's win here last night not only enhanced its chances for the invitation but blocked the Falcons' bid for a Mid-Hudson Conference tie with Westchester. Coach El Evans' squad finished 8-2 in the league and are 16-7 overall. "There are still three places open," Perry pointed out, "and these will be filled from among Dutchess, Nassau, Staten Island, Kingsborough and Ulster." A key game between Nassau and Staten Island Friday night and the Kingsborough-Sullivan contest are still large factors in the selections. Ulster jumped to a 39-26 halftime lead but Westchester's three top freshman prospects — Pat O'Brien, Keith Daly and Arnold Cole — engineered a strong comeback that moved the Falcons to within two points (55-53) with four minutes left to play. Roger Govantes stemmed the tide with a 3-point play and Coach Perry described it as "the biggest play of the game." Glenn Berry, who fell below 20 points with 19, nevertheless was the dominant force in the game, as he picked off 23 rebounds and had eight assists. He triggered two long fast break passes to Gary McDonald after Govantes' 3-pointer "and that broke the game wide open," Perry said. Cliff Weeks led Ulster with 21 points and Gary McDonald had 18. Both have given the Senators three straight strong games, Weeks with 18-19-21 points and McDonald with 23-21-18. Govantes added 17. Coach Perry used only six of his eight-man squad and at the end of the game Berry, Weeks and McDonald were playing with four personals each. Cole was tops for Dutchess with 23 points and Daley and O'Brien, a 6-5 operator, collected 18 apiece. O'Brien (14) and Daley (13) did the heavy damage in the second half, a fact that wasn't lost on Coach Perry. "They're all freshmen," he sighed, "and some of those regulars who flunked out at mid-term will also be back next season."

Dutchess supporters, incidentally, were reported strongly protesting any idea that the Falcons will not be invited to Region XV. Meanwhile, UCCC closes out its regular schedule against Delhi Tech Saturday night at the field house. The game is being dedicated to Captain Glenn Berry, who will be making his last local appearance.

Section Nine Announces Pairings

JEFFERSONVILLE Kingston High and four Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL) teams — champion Ontario, Highland, New Paltz and Rondout Valley — are among 24 teams selected Thursday for the 1971 Section Nine basketball tournament.

Kingston meets Spring Valley in the Lower Bracket opener of Tourney I on March 4, opening date of the new, three division, 12-team format, at Monroe-Woodbury.

In other openers, Highland Falls plays Rondout and Ontario meets Port Jervis in games at Valley Central. New Paltz meets Nanuet at Pine Bush in Tourney II games.

Highland opens against Fallsburgh and Ellenville High plays Delaware Valley at the Minisink Valley in Tourney III games.

Undefeated Newburgh Free Academy drew Ramapo for its first round opponent.

The new Section Nine format is expected to generate tremendous fan interest, particularly in Tourney I (Class) where undefeated NFA (16-0) and third ranked in New York State will be making a strong effort to show critics they are in fact No. 1.

Ramapo (6-10) is not expected to give Coach Mickey Burkoski's Goldbacks too much trouble, but the winner of the other upper bracket game (Clarkstown 16-1 and Middletown 5-10) could make it more interesting.

Section observers feel that the title will eventually be decided plays in the third meeting of the season between Kingston and Newburgh.

The selection by divisions are:

Tourney I—Newburgh, Ramapo, Monroe-Woodbury, Nyack, Kingston, Spring Valley, Middletown and Clarkstown.

Tourney II — Highland Falls, Rondout Valley, Port Jervis, Ontario, Nanuet, New Paltz, Cornwall and Liberty.

Tourney III—Jeff-Youngsville, Florida, Livingston Manor, Tuxedo, Delaware Valley, Ellenville, Highland and Fallsburgh.

First round pairings:

Tourney I
Newburgh vs. Ramapo, 7:30 at Tappan Zee. Winners meet March 7 at North Rockland.

Kingston vs. Spring Valley, 7:30 at Liberty; Livingston Manor vs. Tuxedo, 7, at Minisink Valley. Winners meet March 6 at Liberty.

Delaware Valley vs. Ellenville, 7, at Liberty; Highland vs. Fallsburgh, 8:30, at Minisink Valley. Winners meet 8:30, March 6 at Liberty.

at Valley Central. Winners meet March 6 at Pine Bush. Finals — March 13 at New Paltz State, 3 p.m.

Tourney III
Jeff-Youngsville vs. Florida, 8:30, at Liberty; Livingston Manor vs. Tuxedo, 7, at Minisink Valley. Winners meet March 6 at Liberty.

Delaware Valley vs. Ellenville, 7, at Liberty; Highland vs. Fallsburgh, 8:30, at Minisink Valley. Winners meet 8:30, March 6 at Liberty.

Highland Falls vs. Rondout, 8:30; Port Jervis vs. Ontario, 7, 6 at Liberty.

Finals—March 13 at New Paltz State, 1 p.m.

Sawyers Go Down

POUGHKEEPSIE Our Lady of Lourdes High School overcame an early deficit to defeat Saugerties, 75-63, in a DCSL basketball game.

The Sawyers, who played the contest minus star center Rich Koegel, finished the season with league record of 5-9 and an overall mark of 6-12. Koegel was declared academically ineligible for the finale after having been the high scorer for Saugerties during the 17 previous games.

The Sawyers zoomed in front 18-13 in the first quarter of the afternoon tilt as Dave Fuller, playing in place of Koegel, led the offense and Dave Smith dominated the backboards.

By halftime Lourdes had gone in front 32-30 despite Fuller's 12 points and Smith's 10 rebounds. The home team then ran off a string of 10 straight points at the start of the second half, putting visiting Saugerties in a deep hole.

But the Jerry Hawkins-coached Sawyers kept coming at Lourdes, drawing to within four early in the fourth quarter. However steady Jerry Malgieri soon fouled out to spell the beginning of the end for Saugerties and when Lourdes poured in on with a press the game was iced.

Smith was high scorer in the contest with 19 points. Fuller had 15, Ray Bean notched 13, and Tom Whitaker added 10. Jim Williams led the winners with 18 points.

Play Three UCAL Games; State Hawks at Maritime

Several minor issues will be settled tonight as the Ulster County Athletic League basketball season draws to a close, with three games.

Champion Ontario visits Rondout Valley; New Paltz goes to Highland; and Marlboro hosts Wallkill.

In college action, streaking New Paltz State is on the road at New York State Maritime.

Still at stake in the UCAL is the runner-up spot as well as the individual scoring championship. Rondout Valley is tied with New Paltz for second place, each with eight wins and three defeats, while Wallkill's Bill McAfee holds an 18-point lead over Ron Monroe of Highland in the scoring race.

New Paltz State has won two in a row for the first time in two years and should make it three against Maritime, always a pushover for Hawk teams.

Mazeroski and Cash In Age-Old Drama

By FRED DOWN UPI Sports Writer

Bill Mazeroski and Dave Cash of the Pittsburgh Pirates are playing out one of the classic sequences of spring training: The fading veteran fighting for his job against the fast-rising youngster.

Mazeroski, 34, batted only .229 in 112 games last season and is expected to surrender the regular second base job to Cash, 22, who hit .314 in 64 games. But Maz refuses to go quiet, makes it plain that he intends to fight for the job and has a sympathetic listener in Manager Danny Murtaugh. "They'll both get their chances in the exhibition games," said Murtaugh in Bradenton, Fla., Thursday. "How they do in the exhibition will determine who opens the season at second."

Mazeroski, who has been the Pirates' regular second baseman since 1956, carved his niche in baseball history Oct. 13, 1960, when his ninth-inning homer gave the Pirates a 10-9 victory over the New York Yankees and their first World Championship since 1925.

Ed Kranepool, who goes all the way back to the New York Mets' formative years, pointed out that he batted only 47 times last season and said, "I hope they trade me because I don't see any future here." Kranepool and Ron Swoboda, who are partners in a restaurant, are regarded as likely to be traded by the Mets. Bobby Murcer and Jerry Kenney signed their 1971 contracts with the New York Yankees, leaving Fritz Peterson, Mike Kekich, Ron Hansen and Danny Cater unsigned.

Ted Sizemore, the 24-year-old infielder, acquired by the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for slugger Richie Allen agreed to terms and said he will report today. Paul Richards, vice president of the Atlanta Braves, said he isn't yet close to signing Orlando Cepeda, Clete Boyer and Bob Priddy. Cepeda is believed asking a two-year contract at $240,000.

Dear Abby

Shut Off TV (Man)

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I was having trouble with my TV set so I called a TV repairman, who lives in my neighborhood. I called him at his place of business and he came right over and looked at the set. I asked him to tell me how much it would cost to fix the set, and he smiled and said, "That all depends on how nice you are to me."

We both laughed, and, of course, I thought he was joking. Then he took the set to his shop and said he'd bring it back in a week. Well, after two weeks I called him and asked when he was going to bring my set back and he said, "When your husband isn't home." That's where we stand. How do I get my set back without causing a lot of trouble? If my husband knew about this he would take that punk apart.

KENWOOD

DEAR KENWOOD: Call that self-styled Casanova and tell him if he doesn't have your set back today, you will tell your husband and report him to the Better Business Bureau. I don't think you will have to wait long.

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 years old and have been married five years. From the time I married I have thought about my husband's death, mostly the insurance and pension. I would receive, although it is not a large sum. I have gone as far as watching the want ads for property I might buy when it happens. My husband is only a few years older than I, and is in the best of health, but I think about this daily and wonder if I need help from a doctor. I feel that I love him, and I can't understand why I keep thinking these thoughts. Can you give me your opinion?

BEGINNING TO WORRY

DEAR BEGINNING: If your thoughts give you reason to "worry," by all means, consult a doctor, it's possible to "worry" oneself into a state of ill health.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box

69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

(Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru

Sat. at 9:25 a.m., WKNY-1490.)

My husband has nightmares all the time and it is getting me down.

It's now to the point where

I am afraid the neighbors will think he is being tortured or something.

He's a good man, Abby, and I don't want to jeopardize our close relationship by suggesting that we sleep in separate bedrooms, but I don't know how much longer I can take being awakened like this. Any suggestions?

SLEEPLESS: Tell

your husband to see his doctor and find out what's new in slumber inducement. A mild relaxant before bedtime could help both of you.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

RUMOR: (Q.) I'm still in high school but I know a college freshman and like him very much.

The other day I was over at my girl friend's house. Her sister said she knows the boy I like very well. She told me she thinks he's a homosexual.

My question is: If he should ask me out should I accept? He acts as if he likes me, and I know I like him.—Inter-ested in Arizona.

(A.) Your friend's sister may think it will rain tomorrow. That does not mean it will. She just thinks it will. She thinks your friend is a homosexual. When she talks about it she is engaging in idle speculation and in rumor.

Rumors can be cruel, unfair, and untrue. If you like the boy, and he is not more than a year or two older than you, and he is clean and decent in appearance, and he treats you with respect, accept if he asks you.

DOUBLE BATH: (Q.) Do you think a 12-year-old girl should be forced to take a bath with her 5-year-old sister? I am

When I was younger I didn't mind, but now I'm almost a teen-ager.—Clean But Also Embarrassed in Maryland.

(A.) Your bath time should be private if it's at all possible.

Maybe you could have privacy if you would start bathing at a different time of day, or at night, after your little sister has gone to bed.

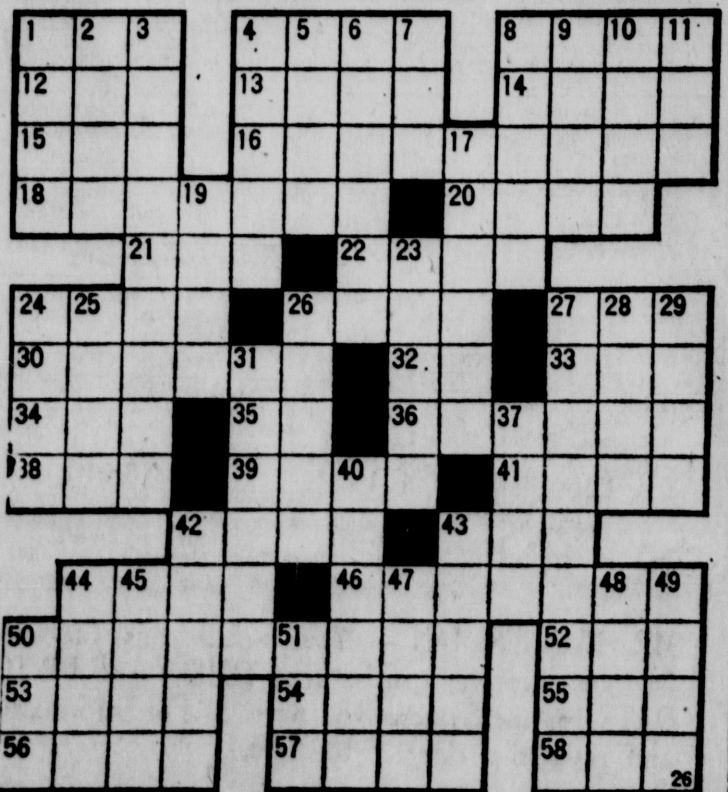

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2102, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered.)

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, February 27

SATURDAY, FEB. 27, 1971

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are many things you wish to do today and tonight that would put you in quite a different position or category but the time for you to do such pioneering is not just yet, so take the time to show you are the one who doesn't think out a new course of action carefully before putting in motion. Use ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Instead of criticizing an associate today, get busy and study some new course of action that will bring in greater benefits. Get Saturday duties behind you, even if they are somewhat palling. Take it easy in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid some confusion around you, go by yourself and plan how to have a more satisfying and profitable future. Going off on some tangent or other because you feel frustrated is not wise. Stick to your knitting and all's well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to see friends and acquaintances but you have to have a cheerful mien or you lose some of them. Add new ones to present roster: first make sure they are the right kind for you. Think constructively.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Before you see that influential person, think over carefully exactly what you are going to say for the right of those charming young people results. Try not to make any radical changes that you will regret later on. Show that you are intelligent.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to get out of that dull routine and become a more progressive person. You get some fine ideas from a new acquaintance, though they do not suit your purposes. Show gratitude, but decline them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You know exactly how to handle certain responsibilities, but take care you do not procrastinate in making some payments that are important. You do not approve of some ideas kin give you. Keep silent and all is well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't give into the temptation to tell off an ally or just to break up altogether. Think the matter over more carefully. Try to improve all other relationships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A new attitude toward those tasks ahead of you will enable you to do them well; you want to get into new outlets for which you are not ready. Strive for the one who doesn't think out a new course of action carefully before putting in motion. Use SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Instead of running away from some tiring tasks you must do, get at them early and they are soon behind you. Plan your time well and you will have some left over for recreation. Perfect that talent you possess, also.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Strive for greater harmony at home and refuse to get into any arguments with kin for any reason. Rid yourself of tensions that are upsetting. More well-being can be yours in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to dash around, but tomorrow would be a better time for this. Keep busy today getting usual routines handled. Show allies you will assist them to improve their affairs also.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Showing that you can handle financial affairs in a sane and clever manner is good now. Plan well and you will have more security. You can assist others to do likewise as well. Keep busy and keep happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who will have many an advanced idea and there is a good mind here, but a flair for wanting to make sudden and radical changes quite often, so teach while young to study projects well and then pursue them to a successful ending. A profession that would enable your youngster to work with new methods of procedure and organize procedures for others would be good here. Give sound ethical training early in life.

WALT DISNEY'S True Life Adventures

Riley's Believe It or Not!

34th Day for Calley — And More to Come

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The drawn-out, often-interrupted murder trial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr.—taking place nearly three years after his company's assault on My Lai—goes into recess again today. After the six-officer jury hears a third prosecution-called psychiatrist, Col. Arnold W. Johnson of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, the trial will adjourn to next Wednesday. Calley is accused of premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians during Charlie Company's search-and-destroy mission at My Lai on March 16, 1968.

In making the request to take time out to summon rebuttal witnesses and arrange for their travel expenses, prosecutor Aubrey Daniel hinted that testimony is far from ended in the case which has proceeded in a start-stop fashion since Nov. 12. Rebuttal testimony, Army

Capt. Daniel said, "will be quite extensive." The three psychiatrists were his first witnesses in rebuttal. Today was the 34th day of court sessions since the jury was empaneled. Calley, who was on the stand from Monday afternoon through the end of the Wednesday session, was the defense's 40th and last witness. Johnson was the 39th for the prosecution. Johnson, Lt. Col. Franklin D. Jones, and Maj. Henry E. Edwards, all psychiatrists at Walter Reed Hospital, constituted the sanity board that examined Calley.

"In my opinion, there was no mental illness at the time," Jones said of Calley's state of mind on the day of the raid. Calley had no impairment of his capacity to tell right from wrong, to do what he knew to be right or to form a specific intent to kill, Jones testified.

The defense for the first time questioned the doctors on the possibility that a man can be "conditioned to kill." Attorney George Latimer asked Edwards whether "you can tell an individual by specific training, by teaching, by holding out awards and rewards and effect specific intent to kill without affecting other areas of his mind." "I wouldn't put it in those terms," Edwards replied. In answer to a written question submitted by one of the jurors, Jones said: "A person could be conditioned to the point of doing something automatically." "I believe it could happen," he said, "that a person could be trained to the degree that he would automatically carry out an act."

Javits on Viet War — Could Doom Nixon in '72

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits has said out loud what some other Republican senators are saying privately: The Vietnam war could doom President Nixon next year as it did former President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968.

"The ship of state may be headed for the same rocks which broke up and sank the presidency of President Johnson," Javits, a New York Republican, told the Mid America World Trade Conference in Chicago Thursday night. He called for total withdrawal by mid-1972.

This view was given support when another Republican, Sen.

Charles McC. Mathias Jr. of Maryland, said in an interview that, unless Congress moves to assist the President in ending the war, the whole political picture may become very fluid in the next 12 months.

Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., who has called for a national debate on whether President Nixon's actions in Laos and Cambodia warrant his impeachment, earlier mentioned the possibility of an antiwar challenge to Nixon unless the end of the war is in sight before the New Hampshire primary March 14, 1972.

According to one GOP senator, who asked that he not be quoted, concern over the political impact of Nixon's Indochina policies is accelerating in Republican circles. There is even some talk, he added, of how this might lead to a challenge similar to Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's race against Johnson three years ago.

"It seems to me," Javits said in Chicago, "that the Nixon administration faces the same dilemma now which faced the Johnson administration in 1967. 'I am speaking here,' he added, "of the 'winning' and 'losing' syndrome which spurred President Johnson on to those measures of military escalation and insensitivity to public opinion which brought his political career to an end."

The senior GOP member of the Senate and its Foreign Relations Committee, Vermont's

George D. Aiken, conceded "there is always the possibility" Vietnam will bring down Nixon as it did Johnson.

"But I think President Nixon can profit from President Johnson's example, perhaps," he said. "I hope so. I haven't given up yet." If U.S. troop withdrawals continue and casualties stay down, Aiken said, "The Democrats will have a much stronger case on domestic issues."

An Albany Dilemma on Job Proposal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Lawmakers are in a dilemma about Gov. Rockefeller's proposals to add 4,400 jobs to the state's 157,000-person workforce in the next state fiscal year.

They may complain about the number of jobs, but the fact is that many of the jobs are recommended in order to provide the services the lawmakers have demanded for their constituents. For example, two new mental hospitals, five new children's psychiatric hospitals, and new facilities at state schools for the mentally retarded are scheduled to open during the year. To staff these facilities, Rockefeller has asked for 2,170 new jobs.

Of this number, 1,240 would be for the new South Beach Psychiatric Center in Staten Island, 494 for the new Elmira Psychiatric Hospital, 236 for the five new children's psychiatric hospitals and 200 for new facilities to alleviate crowding of state schools for the mentally retarded.

Another 232 new jobs were recommended to help in the administration and services of various other mental hygiene services.

There were proposals for 164 more troopers and 896 new positions on the staff of the State University.

Of the 896 new university jobs, 321 represent additions to faculty and administrative, laboratory, technical and administrative personnel to care for the increased student enrollments.

Though there would be more teaching jobs under the budget plan, each professor would have more students in his classes because of the great boosts in student population.

The Wichita Blame

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators have blamed the 31 death Wichita State University football disaster on a sightseeing route that wound up in a dead-end canyon.

The National Transportation Safety Board made the finding in a report due to be issued next Wednesday.

The NTSB cited what it termed the intentional operation of the rented airliner over rugged mountain terrain into a sudden situation where the plane could not climb a towering ridge in front of it and had no room to turn around.

"Too low, too slow," said a safety source with access to the still-confidential report.

The aging, twin engine propeller-driven plane, making its first passenger flight after coming out of mothballs, crashed last Oct. 2 about 2,000 feet below the Continental Divide in a Rocky Mountain canyon west of Denver, Colo.

The NTSB report quotes hearing testimony that the plane was taking a sightseeing path through the Rockies en route to a game at Utah State.
